

Table with 2 columns: Category and Value. The table is partially visible and contains several rows of data.

A large, mostly empty table with a few faint data points visible on the left side. The table is divided into columns and rows by thin gray lines. The content is largely obscured by the page layout and appears to be a continuation of data from the previous page.

A thin horizontal line with a small yellow segment on the left side, likely representing a section separator or a specific data row.